THE NAPOLEON DYNASTY TOPPLING

THE END APPROACHING.

ROULLION, BELGIUM, Aug. 31-7 P. M. A fearful battle was fought yesterday and today. Yesterday morning McMahon commenced a general movement towards Montmedy, and was attacked near Beaumont and driven after a stub-The Prussians captured a large amount of camp stores and drove the French from position to position, until night. The battle was renewed early the next morning and continued all day. During the night large French reinforcements came up, but failed to turn the scale of victory, The Prussians were also largely reinforced and attacked with overwhelming numbers. Mo-Mahon retreated to Sedan with the remnant of his force. The slaughter is immense. It is impossible to estimate the loss.

HUMORS OF THE WAR.

Reporter. The views of General Grant on the conluct of the European war are something which all the world has an interest in knowing. The enterprise of the Times was exhibited during the late visit of his emand at an advance in price. About 125 bales | Excellency, by obtaining, at some length,

> The General, in response to a question as to his opinion of matters between France and Prussia, said that neither party understands war as he understands it. Here the reporter of the Times ventured to assert a cordial endorsement of the remark of his Excellency.

Rhenish frontier.

"Permit me, General," said Mr. Scammon, "to ask you to point out what you conceive to be the chief blunders of the campaigns thus far ?"

"France," said the General, as he lighted a fresh cigar, "made a blunder in commencing war upon a people of equal orders, intermittent fever, nervous affections, size and strength. The true way to make war is to always have three to your ene-No receipts, and no sales reported. Would my's one. An illustration of the fact was given at Shiloh. The enemy there was within a third as large as my own force. Hence the disaster which befel me."

"But, General," said the reporter, have you no faith in manceuvering or in strategy, whereby inferiority in point of numbers can be equalized by superiority of brains ?"

"None whatever. Sherman played that out in his march to the sea. You see, the Confederacy was only a shell, and that is why he met with such success. He had no opposition, My own experience proves round, and 21@22 cents & th for hams. Western this. In all cases where I attempted any of these new-fangled operations, I was Here Mr. Colfax, with a very sweet smile, inquired as to what the General thought should be done by Napoleon. "My idea," said the General, "is that mand army corps in the Prussian forces .-Then he should conscript every Frenchman that can carry a musket, and send him SHINGLES.—The market rules dull, with only a in. Prussia has only 30,000 000 inhabiis a clear difference in favor of France of 10,000,000. Now let Napoleon keep hammand f r mill purposes, and sales are easily mering away at the Prussians, if it takes all made at former figures, while the finer qualities summer. I am of the opinion that the superior activity of the French, aided by their chassepot, their elan, their traditions and their superior navy will enable them to kill a Prussian as often as they can a Frenchman. Hence it is a clear case that if Napoleon hammers away till all the Prussians are killed off he will have 10, 000,000 left. In other words, his cat's tail > is the longest." "What is your opinion of Napoleon per sonally ?" asked Mr. Joseph Medill. "He is a great man. He smokes always and never says anything. He was once in humble circumstances. He was never, however, in the hide business, except perhaps so far as hiding himself is concern-Here General Dent broke into uproariour reporter that he was hired to laugh at and best constructed buildings in the United ous laughter. He afterwards remarked to Grant's jokes; and, he added, he flattered himself he was doing a very extensive business on a very limited capital. General Grant puffed stoically until Dent had finished laughing, and he resumed: "Napoleon is my model. I have stood before his portrait by the hour, trying to mould my countenance into the stony inexpressiveness that characterizes his. I am not certain but that I shall imitate his coup d'etat. He rose from obscurity to be a President. So did I. He rose from President to Emperor; and if I don't follow suit it will be because Congress took 0 65 the trump out of my hand when it reduced

"Well, now, General, tell us what you think of the Prussians," said Mr. Greene-

"Don't like 'em," he responded, sententiously.

"Why not, your Excellency?" "Well, I don't. They want office too much. Why, I have had more than a hundred thousand applications from Dutchmen for office, whose only recommendation was that they 'fought mit Sigel.' As voters I have no objection to them. During the war they stole everything, so that a native had no chance." The General proceeded to comment on Prussian strategy. He did not like it, he said. They were in too much of a hurry. Here now, in less than a month, they have hardly a million of men in the field, which was a shorter time, he said, than he required to move his army from Fort Henry to Donelson, a distance of only thirty miles. This celerity, he remarked, is destructive of all precedent. The Prussians have gone further in ten days than he went in ten months when moving on Rich-He further thought the Prussian move a blunder. In place of going toward Paris by way of Metz they ought to cross James river and go round by way of Petersburg. There is neither dignity nor sense in thi way of rushing straight at Paris with a big army. The Prussian leaders ought to hold on to see who is going to be the next President. This making war for war's sake was not, in his opinion, the true principle of warfare. All wars should have the high and beautiful object of returning the men of one's party to Congress, and the election of one's candidate to the Presidency. At this moment it was announced that lunch was ready, and the party broke up.

The Uhlans,

The German cavalry are composed of cuirassiers, dragoons, hussars and uhlans. The last named, who seem to alarm the French so much, are lancers. They are a part of the regular cavalry force, lightly armed, well mounted, and are probably to make raids in the country in advance of the German line of march. Therefore they naturally excite unusual and wide-spread terror. But they are only German cavalry. The Germans seemed to have learned from our success in making "raids" during the last war, how easy and how effec-Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and tive it is to harass, with competent caval-

A Chapter of Facts,

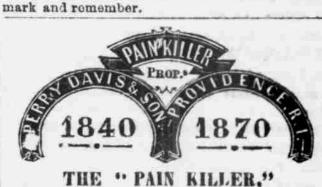

Space is valuable in a newspaper, and it is therefore proposed in this advertisement to condense a variety of facts, important to the public, into a small compass. Those facts refer to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters-what that celebrated medicine is, and what it will do. In the first place then, the article is a stimulant, tonic and alterative, consisting of a combination of an.absolutely pure spiritnous agent with the most valable medicinal vegetable substances that Botanic research?has placed at the disposal of the chemist and the physician. These ingredients are compounded with great care, and in such proportions as to produce a preparation which invigorates without exciting the general system, and tones, regulates and controls the stomach, the bowels, the liver and the minor eczetive organs. What this great restorative will do must be gathered from what it has done. The case of dyspepsia, or any other form of indigestion, in which it has been persistently administered without effecting a radical cure is yet to be heard from, and the same may be said of billious disgeneral debility, constipation, sick headache, mental despondency, and the peculiar complaints and disabilities to which the feeble are so subject. It purifies all the fluids of the body, including the blood, and the gentle stimulus which it imparts to the nevous system is not succeeded by the slightest reaction. This is a chapter of facts which readers, for their own sakes, should

WHY IS IT THAT SO MANY CHILDREN die under the age of five years? That a large proportion of children die ander that age has long been a subject of remark, and without a satisfactory cause ascertained, it is certain.

Also, it is known that worms exist in the human system from its earliest infancy; therefore parents, especially mothers, who are more constantly with their children, cannot be too observ-
